Plaintiffs,

v.

FCA US LLC, a Delaware limited liability company,

Defendant.

Case No.: 16cv1617-GPC(JLB)

ORDER DENYING DEFENDANT'S
MOTION IN LIMINE NO. 6

[Dkt. No. 405.]

Before the Court is Defendant's motion in limine no. 6 to exclude class members who no longer own a Class Vehicle and to exclude any evidence relating to these owners' alleged damages from the trial. (Dkt. No. 405.) Plaintiff opposes arguing that the Ninth Circuit, in Nguyen v. Nissan, 932 F.3d 811, 820 (9th Cir. 2019), made it clear that post-sale events are not relevant under a benefit of the bargain theory because each Class Member suffered damages at the time of purchase. (Dkt. No. 421.) As such, sale of a Class Vehicle does not affect the damages that class members are entitled to. A motion in limine hearing was held on August 19, 2022. (Dkt. No. 422.) After consideration of

1 the briefs, oral argument and the applicable law, the Court DENIES Defendant's motion
2 in limine no. 6.

3 Background¹

4 Plaintiff Carlos Victorino ("Plaintiff") filed the operative putative first amended
5 class action complaint ("FAC") against Defendant FCA US LLC ("FCA" or 6 "Defendant") based on defects in the 2013-2015 Dodge Dart vehicles equipped with a 7 Fiat C635 manual transmission built on or before November 12, 2014 ("Class Vehicles").
8 (Dkt. No. 104, FAC.) He claims that the alleged defect causes his vehicle's clutch to fail
9 and stick to the floor. (Id.) The causes of action remaining for trial are the breach of 10 implied warranty of merchantability under California's Song-Beverly Consumer
11 Warranty Act ("Song-Beverly Act"), the federal breach of implied warranty pursuant to 12 the Magnuson-Moss Warranty Act ("MMWA"), and California's unfair competition law
13 ("UCL") claim premised on the breach of implied warranty claims. (Dkt. No. 241.)

14 On October 17, 2019, the Court granted Plaintiff's renewed motion for class
15 certification solely on the Song-Beverly Act claim. (Dkt. No. 318.) The class is defined 16 as:

17 All persons who purchased or leased in California, from an authorized
18 dealership, a new Class Vehicle primarily for personal, family or household 19 purposes.

20 (Id. at 24.²) On damages, the Court concluded that Plaintiff and class members suffered 21 an injury based upon a defective clutch system at the time of sale; therefore, damages of 22 the cost of repair is consistent with a benefit of the bargain theory of damages under a
23 breach of implied warranty claim and complies with Comcast.³ (Id. at 15-16.)

25 ¹ This case has been vigorously litigated with the parties filing a significant number of motions. For this 26 motion, the Court only recounts the relevant procedural background and court rulings.

27 ² Page numbers are based on the CM/ECF pagination.

28 ³ Comcast Corp. v. Behrend, 133 S. Ct. 1426 (2013).

1 On March 24, 2020, Defendant moved to decertify the class, or alternatively, to
2 modify the class definition to those new vehicle owners who still own the vehicle. (Dkt.
3 No. 337.) On May 8, 2020, the Court denied Defendant's motion to decertify class as 4 well as the alternative request to modify the class definition. (Dkt. No. 348.) On May 5 20, 2020, FCA filed a petition for permission to appeal the Court's order. (Dkt. No. 349.)
6 On August 31, 2020, the Ninth Circuit denied FCA's petition for permission to appeal.
7 (Dkt. No. 354.)

8 On November 20, 2020, FCA filed a motion for reconsideration of the Court's 9 order denying motion to decertify specifically seeking to modify the class definition.
10 (Dkt. No. 355.) On February 19, 2021, the Court denied FCA's motion for 11 reconsideration explaining that the two recent cases relied on by FCA did not support
12 modifying the class definition. (Dkt. No. 366.) However, in that order, the Court stated 13 that outstanding issues at the motion in limine stage are "(1) whether an owner's resale of 14 a Subject Vehicle are factors that reduce the amount of benefit-of-the-bargain damages
15 that the class members are entitled to receive; (2) if so, do these amounts constitute an 16 offset to damages; and (3) which party has the burden of proving an offset. In the event
17 that the Court determines that the resale or disposal of the Class Vehicles is relevant to 18 the calculation of the benefit of the bargain damages, it 'can be readily determined in 19 individual hearings, in settlement negotiations, or by creation of subclasses'" (Dkt.
20 No. 366 at 11 (citing Butler v. Sears, Roebuck and Co., 727 F.3d 796, 801 (7th Cir.
21 2013).)

22 In compliance, FCA filed a motion in limine seeking to exclude class members
23 who no longer own the Class Vehicle and relies on two recent unpublished district court
24 cases which the Court finds both distinguishable and/or not sufficiently supported.

25 In Beaty, the district court denied class certification on several issues including the 26 plaintiffs' failure to propose a damages model that accounted for potential windfalls to 27

former class vehicle owners. Beaty v. Ford Motor Corp., C17-5201, TSZ, 2021 WL 3109661, at *13 (W.D. Wash. July 22, 2021). The plaintiffs proposed a class to include all person who purchased or leased a class vehicle, including former class vehicle owners, and offered a conjoint damages model to show damages classwide based on the “percentage reduction in Class Vehicles’ market value attributable to the [] defect.” Id. at *13. The plaintiffs proposed that damages should be determined at the original point of sale because undisputed evidence showed the defect did not drive down the resale price of the class vehicles. Id. The district court concluded that this damages model was not capable of accurately measuring damages for former class vehicle owners. Id. Because the defect did not drive down the resale price of class vehicles, former owners would not have suffered any damages at all because they would have passed any overpayment to an “unwitting new owner.” Id. In this scenario, former class vehicle owners would end up with a windfall. Id. Because the damages model did not account for potential windfalls to former class vehicle owners, the court concluded that damages were not in line with Comcast. In contrast, here, no evidence has been produced regarding any depreciation in the resale price due to the alleged defect. More importantly, in arriving at its conclusion, the Beaty court assumed without discussion that a benefit of the bargain theory of damages takes into account the resale of the defective product.⁴

In Quackenbush v. American Honda Motor Co., No. C 20-05599 WHA, 2021 WL 6116949, at *7 (N.D. Cal. Dec. 27, 2021), the plaintiffs sought a damages model akin to Nguyen. In the order, the class was redefined to “[c]urrent owners of both new and used

⁴ Beaty concerned the benefit of the bargain under the consumer protection law in Washington and fraudulent concealment. See Beaty v. Ford Motor Co., CASE No. C17-5201 RBL, 2020 WL 639408 (W.D. Wash. Feb. 11, 2020), rev’d and remanded by Beaty v. Ford Motor Co., 854 Fed. App’x 845 (9th Cir., Apr. 2, 2021).

1 class vehicles who purchased their class vehicles . . . from an authorized Honda dealer in
2 California and former owners of the same who resold (or traded it in) to an authorized
3 Honda dealer in California.” Id. at *3. The district court excluded from the class
4 definition former owners who sold to third parties because those owners may have 5 “passed on” the overpayment, made at the time of sale, to the third party; therefore, the 6 former owners were made whole unless they paid out of pocket for a repair. Id. at *7.
7 Simply citing to Beaty, the court did not discuss whether the benefit of the bargain theory
8 of damages allows for a reduction based on a subsequent resale of the defective product.

9 The benefit of the bargain theory is the “difference at the time and place of 10 acceptance between the value of the goods accepted and the value they would have had if 11 they had been as warranted.” Nguyen, 932 F.3d at 818 (citing Cal. Comm. Code section 12 2714(2)). In Nguyen, the Ninth Circuit, relying on precedent, held that the sale of the 13 vehicle with the known defect is the “liability-triggering event” and the “loss was 14 suffered ‘at the moment of purchase.’” Id. at 820 (citation omitted). As such, any post-
15 purchase events, such as manifestation of the defect, are not relevant in calculating 16 damages. Id. Here, while the post-sale event is not a manifestation of the defect as in 17 Nguyen, the post-sale event is the re-sale of the Class Vehicle. The Court finds Nguyen’s
18 reasoning on point and also binding on this Court.

19 The case of Maldonado v. Apple, Inc. is instructive. On a motion to exclude a 20 damages expert, the defendant argued that the benefit of the bargain damages should 21 account for post-sale conduct such as “resale, exchanges, returns, or disposal”, otherwise
22 the class members will get a windfall. Maldonado v. Apple, Inc., Case No. 3:16-cv-
23 04067-WHO, 2021 WL 1947512, at *24 (N.D. Cal. May 14, 2021). The district court
24 rejected the defendant’s argument explaining that the Ninth Circuit has noted that a 25 damages “calculation need not account for benefits received after purchase because the 26 focus is on the value of the service at the time of purchase.” Pulaski & Middleman, LLC
27

1 v. Google, Inc., 802 F.3d 979, 989 (9th Cir. 2015). Recognizing that Pulaski concerned
 2 restitution under the UCL and FAL⁵, the district court further noted that the Ninth Circuit
 3 has since applied that portion of Pulaski to a benefit of the bargain theory of damages in 4 Nguyen.⁶ Id.

5 Moreover, in Carriuolo, a case relied on by *Nguyen*⁷, in addressing adequacy and 6 the defendant's arguments of potential class conflicts, the Eleventh Circuit held that none
 7 of the conflicts raised by the defendant was fundamental including the purported conflict
 8 between those "who sold their vehicle before the sticker was corrected, those who sold
 9 their vehicle after NHTSA completed testing, and those who still own their vehicle."
 10 Carriuolo v. General Motors Co 823 F.3d 977, 990 (11th Cir. 2016). The court
 11 explained that "the fact of resale is immaterial because the injury occurred when class 12 members paid a price premium at the time of lease or purchase." Id.

13 The comments in Maldonado and Carriuolo suggests that under the benefit of the 14 bargain theory, the court should not consider any post-sale conduct as it is immaterial. In 15 this case, the benefit-of-the-bargain damages should be measured at the time of sale.
 16 Defendant has not provided any binding caselaw that the Court should consider 17 otherwise.

23 ⁶ The court in Maldonado rejected the holding in In re General Motors LLC Ignition Switch Litig., 427
 24 F. Supp. 3d 374, 380-81 (S.D.N.Y. 2019), where the district court held that "a plaintiff's duty to avoid or 25 mitigate damages means that post-sale repairs are relevant to the calculation of benefit-of-the-bargain 26 damages, even though such damages are initially calculated according to the bargain that was struck at the time of sale." Instead, the court followed Pulaski and observed that mitigation of damages was an affirmative defense. See Maldonado, 2021 WL 1947512, at *24 (citing Erler v. Five Points Motors, 249 Cal. App. 2d 560, 561 (1967)).

Conclusion

Based on the above, the Court DENIES Defendant's motion in limine no. 6.
